Note that [redacted] although approved by NIPA, was not awarded a $1,000 grant. The grant to each of the others is paid by NIPA while the Agency pays all other expenses. This places [redacted] in a position, no different from any other employee approved for full time academic training. We could have done the same without NIPA's stamp of approval although this will undoubtedly provide certain advantages to [redacted] at Cornell. I suggest that we go ahead with the three, advising [redacted] that although he was approved by NIPA for the program he did not qualify for the accompanying award.
